FiveOn IT was established in November 2009, but recently took a larger step forward in December 2010 to facilitate a strategic focus on managed services. Matt's decision to move on from employment in this space (six plus years in SMB IT service providers) was in search of a smarter way to provide services. FiveOn IT's purpose is to ease the pain of IT failures, big bills, and delayed responses.

"Being inexperienced in the legalities around forming a structure for our company, the starting point for us was to engage the experts at Rogerson Kenny to provide us with sound advice. The support that Rogerson Kenny has provided us has meant that we can focus on the development of our support packages to be as efficient as possible."

Currently Matt is very involved in the business, "We are in the process of developing a toolset that drives our support contracts – so more of an obsession at the moment!" Outside of work, Matt enjoys (in "summer") playing cricket at a local cricket club, getting involved in weightlifting with mates and getting involved in the IT community with other likeminded business owners.
