

Fringe benefits tax - exempt motor vehicles

Overview

This information explains when the use of certain motor vehicles is exempt from fringe benefits tax (FBT), and lists vehicles that may qualify for the exemption.

The list is not exhaustive.

Vehicles are listed by year of the first manufacture of each model, with that listed model continuing to be a vehicle that may qualify for exemption in subsequent years.

-  Vehicles included in the listing are not automatically exempt from FBT. You must meet the eligibility criteria for the exemption to apply.

Eligibility criteria

An employee's use of a taxi, panel van, utility or other commercial vehicle (that is, one not designed principally to carry passengers) is exempt if the employee's private use of such a vehicle is limited to:

- travel between home and work
- travel that is incidental to travel in the course of duties of employment
- non-work related use that is minor, infrequent and irregular (for example, occasional use of the vehicle to remove domestic rubbish).

-  The exemption also applies to non-work related use by an employee's associate that is minor, infrequent and irregular.

Dual cabs

Dual cabs qualify for the work-related use exemption only if either:

- they are designed to carry a load of one tonne or more, or more than eight passengers
- while having a designed load capacity of less than one tonne, they are not designed for the principal purpose of carrying passengers.

-  For an explanation on how to work out if a dual cab is eligible for the exemption, refer to MT 2024.

Record keeping requirements

You are not required to keep special records to be eligible for this exemption. However, you will need to be able to demonstrate that at all times the use of the vehicle meets the eligibility criteria. This could be done, for example, by comparing at regular periods the opening and closing odometer readings of the vehicle with the total distance you expect the employee to travel between home and work during that particular period. Alternatively, you may require more detailed records of the vehicle usage during the FBT year such as a log book together with opening and closing odometer readings.

-  For more information, refer to Fringe benefits tax record keeping.

Usage requirements are not met

If:	Then:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• the vehicle is a car</li> <li>• your employee's use of the car exceeds the limitations set out above, and</li> <li>• you elect to use the operating cost method</li> </ul>	your employee's use of the car is a car fringe benefit and all of the private use of the car, including travel between home and work, is taken into account in determining the business percentage. If no log book records are maintained, the percentage

	of private use will be 100%.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>the vehicle is a car</li> <li>your employee's use of the car exceeds the limitations set out above, and</li> <li>you use the statutory formula method</li> </ul>	your employee's use of the car is a car fringe benefit and all of the private use of the car, including travel between home and work, is taken into account in determining when the car was used or available for the private use of the employee.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>the motor vehicle is not a car, and</li> <li>your employee's use of the vehicle exceeds the limitations set out above</li> </ul>	your employee's use of the vehicle is a residual fringe benefit. The operating cost method or cents per kilometre method may be used for valuing the benefit.
